

Kris Ross
Senior Project Manager at Hipperson Construction

Kris has worked for Hipperson for eleven years and during that time the company has grown enormously. He started with education in engineering and did not plan on a career in construction: but since joining Hipperson he saw the potential of a career there and has been with them ever since. He joined the Board of Directors for personal development, and to maintain relationships with the member subcontractors. As a new member of the Board he looks forward to learning more in the upcoming meetings.
